Dark Truth of Disney's Frozen Fairytale

By George Knowles in China and Tracy You in London

A factory in the south of China is busy making toys from the hit movie, Frozen. Meanwhile, Disney prepares to open a £3.8 billion theme park 900 miles away in Shanghai.

Factory workers labour for 11 hours a day, six days a week. The toys they make are sold through toy stores and websites like Amazon and Toys R Us. Workers come from China's poorest areas, leaving their families and children at home, and spend 50 weeks a year living and working in the factory. They get two weeks off at Chinese New Year.

Basic pay is just £5.30 a day. A peak ticket to Shanghai Disneyland costs £52. A 'Do You Want to Build a Snowman?' jewellery box sells for £24.99 – almost as much as a worker earns in a week. Some bosses are very harsh, giving big fines and small bonuses. Workers who turn up one minute late for their shift can lose up to half a day's pay in fines. New Year 'bonuses' can be just 50 pence.

Summers are so hot here but we have 12 workers in each small room and only a couple of electric fans to keep us cool.

A worker at the factory told MailOnline that the men's bedroom blocks had only 24 toilets for 320 workers. Workers complained of filthy, overcrowded toilets and canteen meals so poor they are forced to buy food outside.

Prices in Shanghai Disneyland:

Anna or Elsa doll from Frozen – £35

Mickey Mouse bag – £36

Mickey Mouse steamed bun – £3.70 (the cost of a week of lunches at the factory).

A great deal needs to be done to improve living and working conditions. The only way to do this is to let the people who buy these Disney toys know the truth about what goes on. We asked both Disney and the factory bosses about these conditions but they did not respond.

For Questions 1 to 6, write the letter for each answer in the box given.
