Three fieldwork sites

Site A is located 460m above sea level. It is a popular site for people to visit. The site contains a car park and picnic tables from which footpaths lead into the forest. Tourist developments have changed the original forest so it is less dense than originally.

Site B is located 560m above sea level. Much of the original vegetation was removed to create a coffee plantation. Since the plantation was closed the natural vegetation has grown back but the vegetation is less dense than it was originally.

Site C is located 685m above sea level. It is an area of natural rainforest which is less accessible than sites A and B. Little development has taken place here.

How to measure humidity

We used cobalt chloride paper to measure the humidity of the air. This paper is blue when it is dry and turns pink when exposed to humid air. We took a piece of cobalt chloride paper from the dry container where it had been kept and held it in the air. We used a stop-watch to measure how long it took for the paper to change from blue to pink. The faster this change of colour occurred, the greater the humidity of the air.
