Section A: Theory and methods

Answer Question 1

1 Source A

Ali is a sociology student studying youth sub-culture and the music her peers listen to. She conducted a social survey with different types of questions. Ali mainly used closed questions to gain quantitative data. Her sample was made up of 10 females she knew from her year group in school. They were members of 2 different sub-cultures, 8 were Goths and 2 were Punks. The social survey also included some open questions. Below are some of the questions she asked:

- Which band or bands do you normally listen to? _____
- Why do you listen to these particular artists? _____
- How much time each day do you listen? (Circle your answer below)
1 hour      2 hours      more than 2 hours
- Where do you listen? _____
- How do you listen? _____

- (a) From Source A identify two types of question being used in the social survey. [2]
- (b) Identify two primary methods that could be used to study youth sub-culture, apart from social surveys. [2]
- (c) Using information from Source A describe two reasons why sociologists may criticise the representativeness of the sample. [4]
- (d) Describe two strengths of using quantitative data in sociological research. [4]
- (e) Describe two strengths and two limitations of using secondary data in sociological research. [8]
- (f) Explain why qualitative data can be useful for sociological research. [10]
- (g) To what extent is all sociological research biased? [15]

Answer either Question 2 or Question 3

Section B: Culture, identity and socialisation

- 2 Sociologists disagree about which factors influence social identity the most. However, all sociologists agree socialisation is important to society. This happens through institutions such as the family, education and the peer group. Some young people also choose to join youth sub-cultures, others do not.
- (a) What is meant by the term 'youth sub-culture'? [2]
- (b) Describe two reasons why some males join sub-cultures. [4]
- (c) Explain how the peer group functions as an agency of socialisation. [6]
- (d) Explain why socialisation is important for individuals and society. [8]
- (e) To what extent is ethnicity the main influence on social identity? [15]

Section C: Social inequality

- 3 Racial discrimination and ageism still exist in many parts of the world. Both can affect individuals' life chances. Sociologists disagree about the main cause of inequalities. Some sociologists think social class is the main cause. Many disagree and believe that other social factors determine how much power and status individuals have in their society.
- (a) What is meant by the term 'racial discrimination'? [2]
- (b) Describe two ways an individual's status can be ascribed. [4]
- (c) Explain how ageism may be experienced by individuals in society. [6]
- (d) Explain why a lack of power for some ethnic minority groups may affect their life chances. [8]
- (e) To what extent is social class the main cause of inequality in society? [15]
